

| Parent Entity      | Child Entity | Relationship | Business Reason                                                                   |
|--------------------|--------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Customers   | Orders       | 1 : Many     | One customer can place multiple independent transactions over time                |
| Stores      | Employees    | 1 : Many     | One retail location hosts and employs a team of multiple employees                |
| Stores      | Orders       | 1 : Many     | One brick-and-mortar store processes multiple transactions daily                  |
| Categories  | Products     | 1 : Many     | One product category group encompasses multiple individual items                  |
| Suppliers   | Products     | 1 : Many     | One external vendor supplies multiple distinct products to the inventory          |
| Employees   | Orders       | 1 : Many     | One checkout or sales employee can process and ring up multiple customer orders   |
| Orders      | Order_Items  | 1 : Many     | One overall transaction contains multiple specific product lines                  |
| Products    | Order_Items  | 1 : Many     | One catalogue product can be sold across multiple distinct transaction line items |
| Orders      | Payments     | 1 : 1        | One unique order transaction is cleared using exactly one complete payment record |
| Order_Items | Returns      | 1 : 1        | One specific purchased line item can be returned at most once for a total refund  |